Trusted advisor guiding individuals and families through personalized estate planning with clarity and care. Focused on delivering client-focused legal solutions in every step of the process.

Victoria Morales, an associate with the GrayRobinson Private Client Services Team, focuses her practice on elder law and wealth transfer strategies for individuals and families. Sensitive to the complexities of end-of-life, long-term care, probate, and guardianship issues, Victoria aims to alleviate the stress often associated with these matters.

Victoria combines strategic counsel with deep empathy for her clients' unique needs, tailoring each estate plan to meet specific financial and personal goals. She guides clients through options for long-term care and Medicaid planning, recognizing the personal sensitives involved and fostering clarity at every stage.

Victoria's approach is enriched by her background as press and communications secretary and deputy field director for New York State Senator Phil Boyle, where she conducted research and drafted reports on economic development and social justice. This experience further enhances her ability to understand and respond to diverse client needs. With a blend of dedication and strategic insight, Victoria guides clients through complex estate matters and ensures seamless probate and trust administration.
