

USDA SECRETARY VILSACK ANNOUNCES FEDERAL FUNDING TO ASSIST PROGRAMS FOCUSING ON UNDERSERVED PRODUCERS

The American Rescue Plan, passed by Congress and signed into law by President Joe Biden in 2021, provides federal funding to counter the current pandemic and deliver immediate and direct relief to families and workers impacted by the COVID crisis through no fault of their own. Under Section 1006 of the new law, the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) received substantial funding to help underserved farmers, ranchers, and foresters secure the education, tools and support they need to succeed in agriculture.

Last week, Agriculture Secretary Tom Vilsack announced that USDA will provide approximately $75 million in American Rescue Plan funding to 20 organizations that have demonstrated their ability to provide technical assistance connecting underserved producers with USDA programs and services. The 20 organizations, listed below with their online addresses, were selected for their proven track records working with underserved producer communities, such as veterans, beginning farmers, indigenous and minority ag groups, limited resource producers, and producers living in high-poverty areas. These organizations will use the additional federal funding to expand their work with underserved producer communities on business and tax planning, financial assistance planning, market planning, farmer advocacy, and business curriculum development.

USDA announced that this initial funding is just the first step in deploying American Rescue Plan resources in response to demands for more immediate assistance to help underserved producers succeed. Section 1006 of the new legislation provides direction and over $1 billion in funding for USDA to support programs that assist in a wide range of remedial areas, including:

- On-farm business planning;
- market development and access assistance;
- tax planning;
- climate smart food and forestry practices;
- land access and credit access assistance;
- access to markets and market development.

This announcement is the latest in a series of announcements building momentum around USDA's historic commitment to center equity in decision-making and policymaking and lower barriers to access USDA programming.

The list of 20 is an impressive group of dedicated non-profit organizations. Each is uniquely focused on strengthening American agriculture, reflecting a spirit and determination to support our nation's farmers, ranchers and foresters.
