Public Finance

Funding major improvements, infrastructure and development can be a tedious and overwhelming process; however, GrayRobinson's public finance team has counseled a wide variety of clients through numerous financings. Our public finance practice group includes attorneys who have served as disclosure counsel, underwriter’s counsel, bond counsel, issuer’s counsel, borrower’s counsel and trustee’s counsel for tax-exempt and taxable financings. GrayRobinson attorneys have served as counsel on more than $21.7 billion in public financing in the past decade alone.

GrayRobinson has provided public financing counsel to a variety of clients, including aviation authorities, banks and other financial institutions, charter schools, cities, counties, government financing pools, hospitals and other health care facilities, housing authorities, port authorities, school boards, tax-exempt organizations, utilities, water support authorities, universities, and various special districts. GrayRobinson has been involved in both traditional public finance methods, such as revenue and general obligation bonds and revenue and refunding notes, as well as innovative structures such as public-private partnership gap financing. No matter the need, we have attorneys with the necessary experience.

Our public finance attorneys are active members of the National Association of Bond Lawyers (NABL) and are regular speakers at NABL events and other public finance conferences, including The Florida Bar’s Public Finance in Florida conference, the Florida Government Finance Officer’s Association School of Government Finance and the Florida Association of Counties annual conference. Our public finance attorneys are also recognized by their peers for public finance by Florida Trend’s “Legal Elite,” Best Lawyers in America, Florida Super Lawyers, and Chambers USA.
