Subrogation

Subrogation is the legal term for "standing in the shoes of," which usually involves the representation of insurance companies seeking to recover on paid losses from liable third parties, including lien negotiation and enforcement proceedings.

GrayRobinson has a Florida state-wide practice in subrogation litigation and a majority of the practice is in the area of Insurance Subrogation Law. The firm has an experienced staff and has developed a system which allows it to handle a very high volume of files in a timely manner. GrayRobinson practices in all Circuits of the State and has appeared in a majority of the County Courts. Our attorneys have lectured before the County Judges' Conference on Subrogation Law and have previously served on the Small Claims Rules Committee of The Florida Bar.
